Dr. John's Blog : Observations & Reflections

JOHN DAY MD
OCT 27

Intently Focused,

I have a lot of tabs lined up, which may reflect the general tension in our world, with so many aspects of hierarchical power under obvious strain, preparatory to snapping suddenly at some point. The US elections are a focal point of this, with much last-stand tribalism being pumped into us, though I think it's all words and group-identity, for the most part.

My perception is that power elites in the east and south have had negotiations at the BRICS summit, which continue, and that the globalists in the west are not going to obtain their techno-dystopia dreams of having us all wired into compliance in their 15 minute cities, mainly because this requires more resources and energy than can possibly be applied to the task. There are other reasons, but impossibility is easier to address.

In a world where peak-oil-plus-liquids happened in late 2018, and that is 90% correlated with real-economy, we will not be able to support layers of global hierarchy, which primarily serve maintenance of the hierarchy, and are badly inefficient at supporting human populations.

The human-self-support is the most resource and energy efficient, but is also subject to catastrophic local failures, as in western North Carolina. The hierarchy, however, actually made that problem worse, which is becoming a lesson of sorts.

Personally, I think the negotiations for a "mostly peaceful" elite power-transition, at least in the US, are well in progress, though still subject to failure. Trump has openly communicated that he won't go after Hunter Biden, and already didn't go after Hillary Clinton, so existential fears may be eased for current elites...

We'll see. If the votes are counted in favor of Trump/Vance, then the deal was done. Trying to call the rig for Harris looks untenable now, so it wouldn't go well. Most police/military/national-guard forces are aware of what is going on. They would choose sides, maybe not all the same side, but there is no appetite for civil war.

(Doomporn-clickbait?) ANALYSIS: Trump is going to win BIG, and then the real fireworks begin... America won't survive as we know it for even ONE YEAR

While visiting with some friends down the road a few days ago the conversation turned to what potential scenarios might arise after the election on November 5. They've settled on the possibility that there may be no winner in the presidential election, that whichever side loses will call foul play on the other. They think that what we witnessed on Jan...

Anti-Spiegel, What the list of mysterious deaths in the Clinton family has to do with the US election

The so-called “Clinton body count”, the list of mysterious deaths in the Clintons' circle, is described as a conspiracy theory. However, it is worth taking a closer look because there are indications that the US Democrats are planning to take action against the Trump movement after the US election. There is even a long Wikipedia article in German about the so-called “Clinton body count”, the list of mysterious deaths in the Clinton family circle, in which we learn that these are just conspiracy theories. However, Wikipedia lists more than 15 mysterious deaths, including many suicides by gunshot wounds, in the Clinton family circle, and one can hardly deny that it is very strange when so many people connected to a highly controversial family die under mysterious circumstances. https://anti-spiegel-ru.translate.google/2024/was-die-liste-der-mysterioesen-todesfaelle-im-umfeld-der-clintons-mit-der-us-wahl-zu-tun-hat/?_x_tr_sl=auto&_x_tr_tl=en&_x_tr_hl=de&_x_tr_pto=wapp

Tariffs are a tax on imported good, paid as a higher price, a sales tax of sorts, though different good can be targeted. Alex Krainer could make more of the cheap-fuel-cutoff demolition of the economy, EU: living in the banksta's paradise European Union's eventual collapse is a certainty – it has been for a very long time. It's been rigged for demolition through its financial architecture which institutionalizes a system of governance that's typical of all historical eras where moneylending oligarchies gained the control of the political system. The predictable result of all this is that European economies are floundering: their entrepreneurial dynamism and competitiveness is being systematically suffocated and slowly consumed by the parasitic leech hidden behind the EU bureaucratic institutions. For the ordinary people and businesses, this system is driving a steady, inexorable descent into poverty.... One of the main components of Europe's pathological financial architecture is the European Stability Mechanism (ESM): Eurozone's permanent bailout fund. The ESM is not exactly a household name, but you can really think of it as a monstrous vampire leech attached to Europe's economy. The treaty establishing the ESM is an astonishing legal concoction which established a limitless, institutional conveyor belt of bailout funds from the European taxpayer, ultimately to the banking cartel. ESM's capital was supposedly limited to €500 million (in some documents it says €700 million), but the Treaty sets no limits on the obligations imposed on European taxpayers, no room for negotiation, no legal recourse.

As drafted, the ESM Treaty was a violation of the EU Treaty(Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union) as well as constitutions and/or laws of EU member states as it restricts each member nation's fiscal sovereignty. Ratifying it necessitated a dismayingly convoluted process of amending the EU treaty and circumventing member states' domestic laws.

It came to an initial vote in January 2012 when it was passed without barely a mention in the press. The ESM became operational in October 2012 even though it was never fully ratified by all member states....ESM officers may not be held accountable at law, nor can their decisions be challenged. Member nations must guarantee such funds, but they can't challenge ESM's decisions. Article 9 may well be titled, “Stand and deliver,” and articles 30 and 32 amount what Nicholas Rockefeller arrogantly called the bankers' KMA card (KMA = kiss my ass): we can do what we want and there is no agency of government that can limit our power, investigate our actions or hold us to account in any way whatsoever. If we gamble and win, the gains are ours. If we lose, all you debt serfs and tax donkeys must make us whole.

Simplicius, Zelensky Begs Grid-Strike Trade as 'Dark Winter' Looms The most interesting Ukrainian news of the past week was Zelensky's sudden floating of a 'compromise' wherein both Russia and Ukraine would stop attacking each other's energy grids... It seems to reveal the actual true purpose behind Ukraine's campaign of the past year or so of striking Russian oil refineries, etc. Rather than aimed at actually crippling Russia's infrastructure—an unrealistic proposal—it seems the whole time to have been aimed at desperately stopping Russia from crippling Ukraine's infrastructure and plunging the country into the stone age, as many have expected to happen this coming winter... In the aftermath of the BRICS summit, Putin gave a short interview wherein he restated Russia's current position on negotiations, with a noteworthy detail... First, he states that Russia is ready to negotiate based on current realities. Translation: this means the currently controlled territories are non-negotiable. Putin reaffirms this by again openly stating that on this particular issue there will be no concessions made nor any "exchanges". The exchanges is clearly in reference to Zelensky's previously-voiced plan to "exchange" the Kursk territories for Russian-controlled territories in the Donbass. However, Putin then goes on to surprisingly say he's open to some "reasonable" compromises—but what could those possibly be?... According to them, Putin will offer Trump a 'softer' negotiating position in order for Trump to save face and be able to stop the war on slightly more favorable conditions, while Kamala would be offered what sounds mostly like the Istanbul deal.

In both cases the non-negotiables appear to be that: Russia keeps all four new regions—Donetsk, Lugansk, Zaporozhye, Kherson. But there is potentially flexibility on how deep the demilitarization goes and how big the "buffer zone" on the northern border would be... May 31 exchange: 45 Russian bodies vs. 212 Ukrainian bodies.

June 14 exchange: 32 Russian bodies vs. 254 Ukrainian bodies.

August 4 exchange: 38 Russian bodies vs. 250 Ukrainian bodies.

October 18 exchange: 89 Russian bodies vs. 501 Ukrainian bodies.

This now totals 204 vs. 1217 in Russia's favor. That makes a ratio of 1:5.9 or about 1 Russian loss for every 6 Ukrainian losses. That is very close to the ratio previously given by Putin... Meanwhile German TV again says Ukraine cannot be allowed to lose because of the vast riches of minerals it possesses... An interesting news story that claims BlackRock is buying up Moldovan land... Unfortunately no details are given. It's said on the heels of the election there, Maia Sandu will feel emboldened to begin provocations against Russia and Transnistria as per the bidding of her masters.

Instead of supporting the development of the country's own energy resources, the Keir Starmer government is prioritizing the shift away from North Sea oil and gas. Companies are beginning to consider relocation, leaving the UK with no locally sourced oil and gas, and no fat tax revenues for an ambitious government.

Faculty Members Suspended From Harvard's Main Library After 'Study-In' Protest Harvard Library suspended roughly 25 faculty members from entering Widener Library for two weeks after they conducted a silent "study-in" protest in the library's main reading room last week — an extraordinary disciplinary action taken by the University against its own faculty.

The faculty study-in protested the library's decision to similarly suspend student protesters who conducted a pro-Palestine study-in last month. The University's decision to suspend students from the library had already come under fire from free speech groups, including the Council on Academic Freedom at Harvard.

During the faculty study-in, professors silently read materials on free speech and dissent while placing signs related to free speech and University policy on the tables in front of them. As they did so, Securitas guards noted down their names and ID numbers. <https://www.thecrimson.com/article/2024/10/25/faculty-members-suspended-harvard-library/>

Survivors of north Gaza invasion report Israeli 'extermination' campaign
Survivors of the ongoing Israeli extermination campaign in north Gaza describe how the Israeli army is separating mothers from children before forcing them south, executing civilians in ditches, and directly targeting hospitals and medical staff. On Thursday night, the Gaza Civil Defense announced that a massive Israeli airstrike targeting a residential area on al-Hawaja street in the northern Gaza town of Jabalia killed over 150 people.
"A horrific massacre is taking place in al-Hawaja street in block 7 in Jabalia," the Civil Defense spokesperson Mahmoud Basal said in a statement posted to Telegram.
"There is no one here to save them."
The Israeli army claimed the massive attack was targeting a Hamas commander allegedly responsible for the October 7 attack last year.
On October 5, the Israeli army stormed the northern Gaza Strip, an area that includes Jabalia, Jabalia refugee camp, Beit Lahia, the Tawam area, Attatrah, and the Saftawi area. The ongoing campaign is an implementation of the so-called "Generals' Plan," named after a proposal by a group of senior Israeli military officials, based on an earlier proposal by retired Israeli general Giora Eiland, which aims to empty the north of Gaza through starvation and bombardment. According to the plan, those who remain in northern Gaza are to be considered enemy combatants and subsequently eliminated. <https://mondoweiss.net/2024/10/survivors-of-north-gaza-invasion-report-israeli-extermination-campaign/>

Recent reports from the Israel Defense Forces (IDF) indicate that the military is providing mental health care for thousands of soldiers who are suffering from PTSD or other mental illnesses caused by trauma from their service in the war.

Many IDF soldiers who finished their initial tour of duty in Gaza have reported to media outlets that they are suffering from trauma due to the "horrors" they "witnessed" while serving in Gaza. The assessments based on commercial satellite imagery were reached separately by David Albright, a former UN weapons inspector, and Decker Eveleth, an associate research analyst at CNA, a Washington think tank.

They told Reuters that Israel struck buildings in Parchin, a massive military complex near Tehran. Israel also hit Khojir, according to Eveleth, a sprawling missile production site near Tehran.... The Israeli military said three waves of Israeli jets struck missile factories and other sites near Tehran and in western Iran early on Saturday in retaliation for Tehran's Oct. 1 barrage of more than 200 missiles against Israel.

Iran's military said the Israeli warplanes used "very light warheads" to strike border radar systems in the provinces of Ilam, Khuzestan and around Tehran. In posts on X, Albright said commercial satellite imagery showed that Israel hit a building in Parchin called Taleghan 2 that was used for testing activities during the Amad Plan, Iran's defunct nuclear weapons development program.

Gilbert Doctorow, The Israeli attack on Iran: what do we know? And what does it mean? First, note that the Israeli attack on targets in and near Teheran was made by air to ground missiles. This is an entirely different type of attack from what Israel has been doing in Gaza, in Lebanon, in Syria. In those fronts the Israelis are primarily using their jets to drop bombs over or from near their targets, including the multi-ton highly destructive glide bombs that the United States has shipped to Israel in lavish quantities because of their destructive power and lethality.

We do not know the nature of the Israeli attack on two provinces of Iran close to the Iraqi border. No video images from there have been published. Perhaps the Israelis crossed the border into Iran, perhaps not. But they clearly hit the Teheran area from missiles fired at a great distance and the reason should be fairly obvious: because the Iranian air defense is robust and has been further strengthened in recent months by installation of Russia’s advanced S400 ground to air missiles... What do I hear and read in ‘unofficial’ internet sources, mostly Russia-based, that bears on the question at hand? It is that Russia provided to Teheran advance warning of the impending Israeli attack coming from its own technical means of intelligence gathering, presumably meaning satellites and/or AWACS. If this is true, then it demonstrates that Russia will provide effective and highly useful assistance to Iran as the conflict with Israel evolves, even though no binding mutual defense treaty has been signed, let alone ratified. The lack of a treaty in place is simply to prevent Iran from abusing a blank check and behaving irresponsibly... We may assume that Russia will be rushing in replacement missiles for those of its S400 expended in resisting the Israeli attack, or where needed to replace damaged Iranian air defense locations. Thus, Tel Aviv will be given pause when planning any deep incursions to stage bombing raids. <https://gilbertdoctorow.com/2024/10/27/the-israeli-attack-on-iran-what-do-we-know-and-what-does-it-mean/>

EPA Bans Pesticide Linked to 'Irreversible' Neurological Damage to Unborn Babies
Citing a need to protect the unborn babies of pregnant women, the EPA banned DCPA, used on farms, golf courses and athletic fields. Also known as Dacthal, the chemical is linked to low birth weight, impaired brain development, decreased IQ and impaired motor skills. <https://childrenshealthdefense.org/defender/epa-bans-pesticide-dcpa-irreversible-neurological-damage-unborn-babies-cg/>

Guillain-Barré Syndrome Associated With 17 Vaccines, Including COVID and Flu Shots
A new long-term study assessing the association of vaccines with reported cases of Guillain-Barré syndrome (GBS) found that "most vaccines" were associated with GBS, and that reports of vaccine-associated GBS have been "increasing steadily over time." <https://childrenshealthdefense.org/defender/guillain-barre-syndrome-covid-flu-vaccines/>

Canada Begins Euthanizing Citizens with 'Covid Vaccination Syndrome'
<https://slaynews.com/news/canada-begins-euthanizing-citizens-covid-vaccination-syndrome/>

Internal reports show hundreds of Canadians chose to be euthanized because of poverty and loneliness Internal reports have revealed that an increasing number of people in Ontario seek "Medical Assistance in Dying" (MAiD) due to poverty and isolation rather than illness.

In 2016, Canada introduced MAiD, initially intended for terminally ill patients. However, in 2021, the federal government expanded the program, allowing chronically ill individuals, who are not at risk of imminent death, to seek euthanasia. This expansion has led to a rise in requests from individuals whose suffering may stem more from financial hardship and social isolation than from medical conditions alone. (Related: Disabled Canadian man reveals he's been offered EUTHANASIA multiple times by hospital staff.)

According to information published on Oct. 16 by the Associated Press, these non-terminal patients seeking MAiD come from impoverished communities in Ontario where access to adequate housing, social support and financial aid might have mitigated their distress.

One doctor recounted the case of a middle-aged man suffering from chronic injuries who sought euthanasia after the government support payments he received were reduced, leaving him trapped in poverty and without any other options.

In another case, a man suffering from a serious lung disease requested euthanasia largely because he was homeless and in debt, unable to face the prospect of long-term care. Despite initial hesitation, the doctor eventually agreed to the request. <https://www.naturalnews.com/2024-10-25-canadians-choosing-euthanasia-due-to-poverty-loneliness.html>
